IMPROVING LIVES EXPONENTIALLY

COMMENCEMENT

Friday the Sixth of August, Two Thousand and Twenty-One at Five O'Clock in the Evening

The I Ching is an ancient divination method to clarify the direction of change and how best to adapt oneself to the circumstances. The method produces a six-stage graphic composed of solid(yang) and separated (yin) lines.

In the consultation for the Graduating Class of 2021 the hexagrams #36 Ming I/Darkening of the Light changing to #15 Ch'ien/Modesty were received from the Oracle.

In #36 the Earth trigram is above the Fire trigram. It symbolizes the light being hidden by the dark, a time when general forces are restrained by circumstances outside of one's control.

It counsels the person to be persevering and to maintain their inner light to make sure their will prevails in the face of difficulties.

Hexagram #15 suggests patience with the external circumstances while balancing their inner and outer behavior, to equalize extremes of emotion and behavior in order to restore order in their world.

Hippocratic Oath

(adapted)

I solemnly promise, as a care provider, to practice my profession to the best of my ability. I will use my knowledge and skills to aid in the prevention, diagnosis, and effective treatment of diseases. I will try to help those in my care to understand disease, treatment, and prognosis.

I will encourage those I care for to participate in decisions relating to their lives. I will endeavor to alleviate their fears and recognize that occasionally the most meaningful treatment may be to listen with kindness and understanding.

I will treat others with dignity and will give to them the respect and privacy which I would hope to receive. I will keep other's trust and preserve confidentiality. I will understand that a person's sense of self-esteem is essential to good health.

I will value life even as I must also strive to understand the process of dying.

I will respect the wisdom of my teachers and will share my knowledge with others.

I will strive to further my education and develop habits that promote further intellectual growth.

I will be proud enough to practice to the best of my ability and remain humble enough to call for assistance when beneficial. I will encourage and cooperate with all others providing care so that they may perform their duties effectively and with consideration.

I will live for the good of people rather than for things. I desire that my empathy will never be subservient to skill and knowledge. I see my ability to be a gift to be shared with humanity.

Chinese Medicine Oath ~ Code of Conduct

(adapted from Dr. Sun Si Miao, Tang Dynasty)

I shall look upon those who have come to grief as if I myself have been struck, and sympathize with them deeply.

I shall not give way to wishes and desires, but first develop an attitude of compassion.

I shall not ponder over my own fortune or misfortune and thus preserve life and have compassion for it.

I shall not look with contempt on those afflicted but instead I will develop an attitude of sympathy and compassion.

I shall treat all patients alike, whether powerful or humble, rich or poor, old or young and not allow conditions of life keep me from helping whole-heartedly.

I shall maintain a dignified appearance and not speak prematurely, make fun of others, decide whether a patient's decision is right or wrong nor discuss the business of other people.

I shall not emphasize my reputation, belittle others or praise my own virtue.
